Appointment with Tomorrow

By Dr. Myron Wicke
General Secretary
The Division of Higher Education
The Board of Education
The Methodist Church

I am grateful for the opportunity to be at Millsaps College on this notable occasion, when so many of the leaders of our church are in attendance. They are men of power and dedication, and few know fully the burdens they bear. The bishops are truly part of an endless line of splendor and, I must add, of terrible responsibility.

Yet I have no plans to instruct the bishops. They have no need of teaching from me. I propose rather to speak to the students among us — those who know all the ropes and are already wiser than their teachers, and those who are new, seeking to find their places here. I count myself among you who are new, for as I grow older I discover that learning must begin every morning and must go on every night. What I have to say I have written out, partly because of certain personal problems of the moment and partly to keep it brief. Let us make a pact — you keep cool; I'll be brief. But I am in earnest, deadly so.

I.

In his own characteristic way, Henry David Thoreau once put a minister in his place with this most unpleasant question: "Have you ever yet in preaching been so fortunate as to say anything?" It is a question I have fully in mind this morning — and well I should.

The world of the 1960's and 70's is still struggling to be born, and in generations ahead there will be yet another and then another. Even so, this world is the theater of our lives, and like our forebears we must use what we have. For us this is both the best and the only day to be alive. It is a great day to be a student. I have no wish to attempt an analysis of the world situation, for which you can be grateful. I choose rather to touch upon three of the world's symbols, and mainly as they describe America in our day. You have been hearing about them at Millsaps.

In perhaps the most provocative single book dealing with the urbanization of American culture, Harvey Cox, the author, suggests two basic images which, he insists, define the nature of USA 1960. The first of these is the telephone switchboard which connects us with almost anyone for conversation, brief or extended. The author notes, however, that the unlisted telephone number is also symbolic of our civilization. With an unlisted number we may try to speak to whom we will (if his number is not also unlisted). At the same time we may retain almost full non-involvement for ourselves. I call him; he can't call me. The telephone switchboard is an omnipresent sign of our ability to communicate with one another, even at distances, if we wish to do so. Let it stand for many related signs of our times.

The second symbol is the cloverleaf, leading on or off a limited access highway. This symbol suggests our great mobility, brought about particularly by advances in transportation and automobile engineering. The cloverleaf is at the same time familiar to all of us as a potential danger, since if one takes the wrong turn he may find himself lost to civilization for hours, days, or weeks, if not permanently.

These are powerful symbols and useful. To them I should like to add a third, which the author of The Secular City has not neglected. This symbol is the automated machine which leads to the quite unbelievable ability to produce things — those we need, those we enjoy, and those which merely add to the confusion of our households. But the symbol suggests also cybernation, a monstrous word, which simply stated implies the hitching of computer to automated machine.

These symbols are three of our time — the switchboard for communication, the cloverleaf for transportation, and the strange machine controlled by a computer for the rapid production of things.

The symbols are, of course, unequally important and they are not the only critical ones of contemporary life. Yet for my purpose they will do. These represent the triumph of the human brain over fundamental hindrances to more complete humanity.

II.

The symbols I have used, for all their power, also thrust the rational man and woman immediately into a host of problems, some of them exquisitely frustrating.

While the means of communication improve sensationally, the will or even the possibility of communicating with one another on important matters seems strangely unavailable. Take for example the struggle of those in one age group to enter useful conversation of any depth with those of another age. So the current cry on many a campus, "Don't trust anyone over thirty," is an admission that 25 cannot speak with 45. A friend of mine, long harassed by whimsical as well as reasonable student demands, tells me he is himself on the point of listening to no one under thirty. What a loss!

Thoreau spoke for many a student when he said in Walden:

> I have lived some thirty years on this planet, > and I have yet to hear the first syllable of > valuable or even earnest advice from my seniors.

But any student of Thoreau knows that Walden is a whole book of advice to youth by an older man. All of us know, too, that Thoreau was deeply indebted to men of all ages and all places, especially to Emerson, his more famous Concord friend. Thoreau himself spoke incisively to a very young Indian in England — Gandhi, by name. Actually the single way to avoid becoming thirty years old is to die at age twenty-nine or earlier. It is an uncomfortable option.

Tension between the age levels is good and in the nature of things, but deafness to one another is evil. The problem of communication among human beings requires far more than the most effective technological devices can supply.

Modern mobility creates its own paradoxes. We can go further, faster than the most sanguine optimist ever imagined. Yet we do so — on every road in the land — with a criminal disregard for the nature and value of the human spirit, for and by which our highways and automobiles were created.

Some years ago I sat in a commencement ceremony at a college such as this. The first degree was granted in absentia, if I may so use the term, to the top student in the class, a young man already admitted to a leading graduate school. But there was no happiness of human heart as the degree was awarded. There was only sadness, for in truth the student involved was dead, killed a week before by a drunken driver.

I propose no sermon on abstinence. You know the statistics as well as I. I say only that we have transformed an astounding gift of human intelligence, the modern automobile on a modern roadway, into a murder weapon, and the word "murder" is not too strong.

The production of goods in this country — even before benefit of cybernation — suggests a potential far beyond any foreseeable needs for our people. When ways are found, as they can be, to transfer the expertise of one people to another, the day is near when no person need be without the necessities of life. Alas! Only an extraordinary blindness could lead anyone to think that we have learned to supply even Americans with those goods essential to elemental human dignity.

So while affluence paradoxically causes many to seek the psychiatrist's couch, others literally have no place to lay their heads — no health — and worst of all, no hope.

Harry Belafonte made the point recently in a lecture at Fisk University in these words: "At the great feast we found no room at the table. We were not even offered leftovers." How could any thoughtful person disagree? So Erich Fromm strikes a true note when he writes:

> Theologians and philosophers have been saying for a century that God is dead, but what we confront now is the possibility that man is dead, transformed into a thing, a producer, a consumer, an idolator of other things.

III.

The so-called secular world — indeed this whole "blessed plot, this wondrous green ball of earth," to violate Shakespeare — offers fantastically new and exciting opportunities. These possibilities have existed all the time, but the human brain is uncovering them with accelerating rapidity. This is a function of the human brain. What a day to be alive! There is indeed much worth celebrating. But with any celebration must come the sobering realization that alongside technological advance may develop conditions leading to human degradation unknown to more unsophisticated eras.

I do not pose as a latter-day prophet, nor even as a bush-league Cassandra. It takes no prophet, however, to see that every technological leap places a new demand upon the human spirit to manage what has been created.

So I turn to the essence of my brief comments to you. At its best your university education may help you to begin the life-long process of genuine self-education. If this is your present stance you have no need of additional words from me. Study and honest thought always prove themselves. Always!

Nothing should or can stay the advance of knowledge. The tireless search must go on to make knowledge serve the needs of man, as well as to enrich his spirit by the half-divine act of discovery. There is no salvation in ignorance.

But equally there is no salvation in knowledge and skill alone. Absolutely none.

Perhaps the word "salvation" frightens you. But it is a fine word. Salvation is our need. Salvation implies wholeness, completeness, health. Salvation is no one-time thing, no once-and-for-all result, no final product. Salvation is a growing, a becoming, a living.

There are signs on every hand that your generation seeks such wholeness. You are not content with the work of my generation. You ought not to be. Neither are we.

I must, nevertheless, pass on the melancholy testimony that when my peers graduated from college in the 1930's, in the midst of grinding depression, we hated the climate into which we were being thrust. Many students in those days joined a variety of movements, some of them communist-led, not at all because they were enamored of communism, but because they saw no hope along any other road. Unfortunately, by the noon of their lives, some time before age 40, most of them realized that they were lost in a wilderness. Thus Arthur Koestler's magnificent novel of the 30's is entitled Darkness at Noon. Beware of the darkness at noon!

Some of today's students have taken to the streets to protest the misuse of man by his fellow-man, and the misuse of students by their universities. We are all in their deep debt. Because of these marching feet, the world will never be quite the same again. Along with these signs of health, however, there have been hideous aberrations, represented, for example, by Miami and Daytona Beaches, at Easter, of all times, and by mocking events at many other places. These are a kind of hell, a constellation of horrors which outdo the Walpurgisnacht of Goethe's Faust; and as in Faust, the horrors are self-inflicted.

Yet the ultimate power of the student generation will not be measured primarily by marches, whether to the beaches or to dark prisons. Surely not by self-immolation, self-burning, the ultimate in irresponsibility. Your power will be shown tomorrow by the quiet, day-to-day application of intelligence, imagination, and love.

Let me call these three the ingredients of moral power. Without intelligence, we are doomed. Without imagination and love, knowledge only intensifies the human crisis. So the real job ahead is infinitely more demanding than a two-day march, or a flood of hot words.

Milton Mayer has made the point most graphically, in an updating of the parable of the Good Samaritan:

> A man lies bleeding by the road. Shall I use my automatic transmission to stop my car? The priest and the Levite were graduates of the Harvard Medical School, as the Samaritan was not. He misplaced the tourniquet. Too bad! But he was the only hope of him who was fallen among thieves.

We hear many times of those who are willing, as the current expression goes, to put their lives on the line. Some have done so, and they merit our respect. It will need to be done again and again.

Let me insist, however, that the best sacrifice you can make, for all the days of your life, is to put your body, and your mind, and your spirit on the line — all three. For these are you, not just a part of you. These are your very essence. The test of your devotion will be more severe in 1975 than in 1966. In fact, this is the reason you are at a college of this type. It is for this reason that colleges like Millsaps exist.

St. Paul has said this much better, and the New English Bible makes it clearest of all. I quote it only as a personal and concluding statement of faith. Please think about accepting it yourself. Wrote Paul:

> Therefore, my brothers, I implore you by God's mercy to offer your very selves to him; a living sacrifice, dedicated and fit for his acceptance, the worship offered by mind and heart.

At Millsaps you are making your appointment with tomorrow. God help you.

Millsaps College

Citizen Citation

awarded to

in recognition of outstanding achievements and services in the field of which reflect honor upon the State of Mississippi and the Nation

Dated this day of A.D. 19
at Jackson, Mississippi

President of the College

Chairman of the Board of Trustees

Millsaps College presented citations to eleven non-alumni and twenty-five alumni at its "Toward a Destiny of Excellence" convocation.

Citees, both citizens and alumni, were chosen from public nominations by panels of anonymous judges. Selection was based on contributions to the community, state, and nation and to the nominee's profession. Only nominees who could be present to receive the awards in person were eligible; thus a number of citizens and alumni who might otherwise have been honored were disqualified.

The citizen citations were presented at the Friday night program of the "Toward A Destiny of Excellence" convocation, held February 24-25. Alumni awards were given Saturday morning.

Millsaps College honored herself in awarding those who have distinguished themselves in their work and in their daily contact with their fellow man.

WILLIAM HENRY ANDERSON

Dr. W. H. Anderson, of Booneville, Mississippi, is a man who has given distinguished service in three separate fields—those of medicine, of journalism, and of education.

After graduating in medicine from Tulane he took postgraduate work in the New York Postgraduate Hospital and also at the Mayo Clinic. Then he returned to Booneville and began the practice of medicine. Later he opened the Anderson Clinic and has served as its chief-of-staff since 1920. He has been a member of the board of directors of the Northeast Mississippi Hospital since 1918, and he has also held many other offices connected with the practice of medicine. During all his years of practice his concern has been to minister not only to the physical needs of his patients, but to their minds and spirits as well.

Since 1928 he has been editor of the Booneville Independent, a weekly newspaper. He also served from 1926 to 1960 as editor of the Mississippi Doctor, a monthly publication. Under his leadership both of these journals were used to make the public aware of great medical and educational needs and to secure appropriate legislation for alleviating these needs.

ROY HERBERT BLACK

Roy Herbert Black, of Lee County, Mississippi, is a past mayor of the town of Nettleton and a present member of the Mississippi House of Representatives. On January 26 of this year he announced his candidacy for the office of Lieutenant Governor. Representative Black is President of the Wood Junior College Board of Trustees and is a member of the Board of Trustees of Scarritt College. He is also a member of the development committees of both Millsaps College and Emory University.

An active layman on the local level, Mr. Black has also accepted many church responsibilities of a wider nature. Four times he has been a member of the Southeastern Jurisdictional Conference of the Methodist Church, and three times he has been an appointee to the nationwide General Conference. In addition, Mr. Black has been named chairman of the conference lay leaders of the Southeastern Jurisdictional Council.

Roy Black has given much time and effort to civic and youth work. He has served as District Governor (30-A) of Lions International for the State of Mississippi, as a director of Lions International, and as a member of the Board of Directors of the Mississippi Economic Council. He has also been very interested in Scouting activities, is an Eagle Scout himself, and has been instrumental in leading many boys toward attaining this highest of all ranks. He was given the Scouting Silver Beaver Award as evidence of his unselfish and significant contributions to this worthwhile cause.

Several years ago Millsaps College had the privilege of conferring a doctoral degree upon this outstanding Mississippi citizen. The College is happy to have the opportunity to recognize him again.

TURNER CATLEDGE

Turner Catledge, a native of Ackerman, Mississippi, has been a newspaperman for more than forty years. He has served his field with integrity. He began his career at the age of fourteen by setting type for the Neshoba Democrat. After graduating from Mississippi State he became managing editor and mechanical superintendent of the Tupelo Journal.

In 1924 he became a reporter on the Commercial Appeal and in 1927 joined the staff of the Baltimore Sun. From there he went to the New York Times, having been given a position with that paper as a direct result of a letter from Herbert Hoover, who had observed Mr. Catledge's work in covering the 1927 Mississippi floods.

After an assignment on the local staff of the New York Times he was transferred to the Washington bureau, where he served in various capacities, including those of Capital correspondent. In 1936 he became the Time's chief news correspondent, a post which offered him the chance to travel in virtually every state of the Union.

He spent two years with the Chicago Sun as its roving correspondent and editor-in-chief and then in 1943 returned to the New York Times as the newspaper's national correspondent. That same year he covered the European battlefronts and the activities of the Red Cross. Since that time he has traveled widely in the South Pacific and in Europe.

In 1951 Mr. Catledge assumed his duties as managing editor of the New York Times, and it was during this tenure that he scored a world exclusive—an interview with Premier Nikita Khrushchev. Since 1964 Turner Catledge has served as executive editor of the New York Times.

HOMER VERNON COOPER

Known as Mr. Education in the Vicksburg area, H. V. Cooper has not earned the sobriquet without sufficient cause, as is attested to by the naming of the city's high school in his honor. During his twenty-nine years as superintendent of the Vicksburg schools he served as President of the Mississippi Education Association and the Big 8 Conference and in numerous other capacities. He was state director of the National Education Association for forty years, the longest term in the organization's history. From 1960 to 1964 he served in the Mississippi Senate. His active participation in civic and governmental affairs earned him the title of Vicksburg's "Man of the Year" in 1964. Now director of the Warren County United Fund, Mr. Cooper has given service in many areas and is surely deserving of citation as "the man of many years."

JOHN OLIVER EMMERICH

John Oliver Emmerich, for more than forty years, has made significant contributions to his city, state and nation by means of his journalistic skill and achievement. A graduate of Mississippi State University, he later received the Master of Arts degree from the University of Missouri. In 1956 the degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon him by Millsaps College.

As a writer and as a speaker, Oliver Emmerich has attracted much attention to himself and to Mississippi. In 1951 his efforts to improve rural life were applauded by the Reader's Digest in an article entitled "A Crusading Editor Gets Results." He has been given honors and awards for "distinguished service to the American people," for "distinguished service in journalism" and for "responsible journalism" by such organizations and groups as Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic society; the National Editorial Association; Freedoms Foundation of Valley Forge; Headliner's Association of Atlantic City; the Sidney Hillman Foundation of New York City; the University of Mississippi School of Journalism; and the Mississippi Press Association.

Mr. Emmerich is past editor of the State Times in Jackson. He has served as a member of the Board of Mississippi's Institutions of Higher Learning; a director and chairman of the Board of the New Orleans Branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta; Governor of Rotary; a member of the Board of the Mississippi Economic Council; a member of the board of the Southeastern Life Insurance Company; a delegate to five conventions of the National Democratic Party; and Chairman of the State Planning Commission.

A Sunday School teacher in the Methodist Church, he has served on its General Board of Christian Social Concerns.

Millsaps College is pleased to recognize Oliver Emmerich's value as a citizen of Mississippi.

RICHARD OLIVER GEROW

Richard Oliver Gerow was born in Mobile, Alabama. He attended the Cathedral Parochial School and then the McGill Institute, the high school for boys. In 1901 he went to Mt. St. Mary's College, Emmittsburg, Maryland, where in 1904 he was graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Having finished college, he offered himself to Bishop Allen, the Bishop of Mobile, as a candidate for the priesthood and was sent to the North American College in Rome that same year. In 1906 Mt. St. Mary's College conferred upon him the degree of Master of Arts. On June 5, 1909, young Richard Gerow was ordained to the priesthood in St. John Lateran's Basilica in Rome by Cardinal Respighi, and shortly thereafter completed his course and obtained the degree of Doctor of Sacred Theology.

Howard A. Nelson

William King Self

Returning to Mobile, he was appointed Assistant of the Cathedral and at the same time Pro Chancellor. Soon he was made the Diocesan Chancellor. These offices he held until 1920, when he became the Rector of the Cathedral of Mobile.

In 1924 he was named Bishop of Natchez and was solemnly consecrated as Bishop in the Cathedral at Mobile by Bishop Allen on October 15, 1924. He arrived in Natchez and took formal possession of the See on November 12, 1924, residing there until July, 1948, when the Chancery Offices of the Diocese were moved to Jackson, Mississippi.

In 1949 he received from Rome the honorary title of Assistant at the Papal Throne, and in 1957 the honorary LL.D. from Mt. St. Mary's College.

Although the Most Reverend Richard Gerow achieved in 1966 the status of retirement from administrative duties, he is active in spirit and in truth as Bishop of the Natchez-Jackson Diocese.

For his life of love for and service to Mississippians, Millsaps College is honored to recognize Richard Oliver Gerow.

PAUL BURNEY JOHNSON, JR.

When the history of the past three years in Mississippi is written, the record of Paul B. Johnson, Governor, will stand out as crucially important amidst the storm of events of an era of change.

From his earliest days, he learned the meaning of public service. He grew up in the home of Paul B. Johnson, Sr., Governor of the state from 1940 through 1943.

His political ability showed itself early when he was named president of the student body at the University of Mississippi. Recognition of his qualities of leadership followed when he was named to Ole Miss's Hall of Fame, the school's highest honor accorded students.

Soon after receiving his law degree from the University and admission to the Bar, he enlisted in the Marine Corps and served in the South Pacific, attaining the rank of captain and compiling an outstanding combat record.

Returning to Hattiesburg from service during World War II, he resumed his law practice and immediately became active in the religious, political, civic and fraternal life of Mississippi.

Paul B. Johnson's political star rose rapidly and in 1959 he was elected in the first primary to the second highest position in state government. As Lieutenant Governor and as President of the Senate from 1960 to 1964, he compiled an impressive record of accomplishment.

In April, 1963, he announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Mississippi, and, after an arduous campaign, defeated three strong opponents to win the right to face the Republican candidate in an unprecedented general election campaign. With majorities in 74 of the 82 counties, he won a resounding victory in the fall of 1963.

A lifelong Methodist, he has served as a member of the Official Board and chairman of the building committee of Parkway Heights Methodist Church in Hattiesburg, Mississippi. He and his wife are members of Galloway Memorial Methodist Church in Jackson. He is affiliated with the Loyal Order of Moose and is a 32nd degree Scottish Rite Mason and a Shriner.

As fifty - fourth governor of the State of Mississippi, Paul B. Johnson has served during difficult times but, with statesmanship, vigor and courage, he has led the state along a path of progress toward a future of greater opportunity for all of her citizens. In the tradition of L. Q. C. Lamar, he has put principle above expediency and has made the difficult choices to serve the noblest ends when lesser men would have compromised to gain public favor. Destiny placed Paul B. Johnson in the Governor's Office in a critical hour in the state's history and he has not failed the people or his God.

HOWARD ALEXANDER NELSON

Dr. Howard Alexander Nelson, a prominent Mississippi physician, was born in Tunica, Mississippi, on July 1, 1911. He graduated from the University of Mississippi in 1933. He received the degree of Doctor of Medicine from Tulane University in 1937.

Dr. Nelson began the practice of medicine in 1940 in Greenwood, Mississippi. For twenty-five years he served as team physician for Greenwood High School. Since 1960 he has been a member of the Greenwood Financing Commission. He was President of the Greenwood Chamber of Commerce in 1964 and that same year was the recipient of the Robins Award for Community Service by a physician. In 1965 he received the Greenwood and Leflore County Lions Club Outstanding Award. He is a trustee of the First Methodist Church of Greenwood and a prominent lay speaker.

His abilities as a leading physician in Mississippi continue to be recognized. He has been a member of the American Medical Association Committee on Maternal and Child Care since 1953. He was President of the Mississippi State Medical Association in 1956-57 and President of the University of Mississippi Medical Alumni Association in 1962-63. He has served as Councilor of the Southern Medical Association from Mississippi since 1964. At the present time he is Chairman of the Mississippi Political Committee of the Mississippi State Medical Association and has been chosen as delegate to the American Medical Association from the Mississippi State Medical Association for 1967-69.

Dr. Nelson is now serving as president of the University of Mississippi Alumni Association.

Because of his distinguished services in the field of medicine, Dr. Howard A. Nelson has brought honor to himself, his community, and his state.

WILLIAM KING SELF

William King Self is recognized throughout the South and the nation as a distinguished Mississippi businessman and executive. His many interests and his social and business affiliations are indicative of his versatility.

He was born in Marks, Mississippi, in 1918 and has continued to make his home there. He holds a Bachelor of Science degree from Washington and Lee University, awarded in 1939. He is a member of the First Baptist Church of Marks.

Mr. Self is the President of Riverside Industries, which includes Riverside Chemical Company, Riverside Fertilizer Company, and Riverside Oil Mill. He is also President of the Pontotoc Fertilizer and Chemical Corporation, Pontotoc, Mississippi, and of the Tupelo Oil Mill, Tupelo, Mississippi. He is a director of the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis, the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company, the National Soybean Processors Association, the Vegetable Oil Export Corporation, and the National Association of Manufacturers. He is a member of the Marks Chamber of Commerce, the Delta Council, the Mississippi Economic Council, the National Industrial Conference Board, the Chicago Board of Trade, and the New York Cotton Exchange.

Mr. Self is active in Boy Scout work and serves on the Delta Area Boy Scout Council. He shows his interest in education as a member of the Board of Trustees of Mississippi College, Clinton, Mississippi, and of Parsons College in Fairfield, Iowa. He serves on the Advisory Committee to the Presidents' Council of Mississippi Colleges and Universities. He is President of the Mississippi Arts Foundation and is the owner and publisher of The Delta Review.

Because of his outstanding accomplishments, William King Self is listed in Who's Who in America.

Kirby P. Walker

Eudora Welty

KIRBY PIPKIN WALKER

Dr. Walker was a young man when in 1937 he became superintendent of the public schools of Jackson. For thirty years he has kept his ideas youthful and his education standards high, working effectively and in good humor with the people of his school district. During these years there has been a continual enlargement of the school facilities, the academic program, and the teaching staff—all made necessary by a rapidly growing city.

With the advice and assistance of the fine citizens who have worked with him as members of the Board of Trustees, Dr. Walker, with his keen mind and exceptional energies, has developed for the youth of Jackson excellent educational opportunities. He has become known and respected as an educator both in this region and in the nation.

A native of Dunn, North Carolina, he received a Bachelor's degree from Southwestern-at-Memphis and the Master's degree from the University of Chicago and did further graduate study at George Peabody College, the University of Southern Mississippi, and the University of Mississippi. He was awarded an honorary doctorate by Southwestern. Among his numerous other honors, he has served as the President of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools and has been a member of the Council of Advisors to the United States Commissioner of Education.

This city has been fortunate to have the uninterrupted services for thirty years of this able and personable educator. For his contribution to the education of youth and for his services to his fellowman, we pay honor to Kirby P. Walker.

WESLEY HARRIS COLLINS

Harris Collins, class of 1936, has spent his entire working career in service in and for the government, both state and national. He has been Assistant Clerk and Chief Clerk in the Mississippi House of Representatives, State Office Manager of the Mississippi Unemployment Commission, Administrative Assistant at Key Field in Meridian, Mississippi, and Personnel Officer at Langley Field in Virginia. He served in the United States Army in this country and in Morocco, Algeria, Sicily, and Italy. He was awarded the Bronze Star and the British Empire Medal.

Since 1949 Mr. Collins has served in the State Department, in which his principal positions have been Budget Officer of the Bureau of European Affairs, Deputy Executive Officer of the United States Mission to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Paris, Administrative Officer of the American Embassies in Madrid, Spain, and in Ankara, Turkey, and Director of the Office of Budget of the Department of State. He is at present Deputy Administrative Officer of the United States Mission in Saigon, Vietnam.

In an area where skilled and intelligent leadership are vital, Harris Collins has served honorably and well.

WILLIAM MEYERS COLMER

William Meyers Colmer, a native of Jackson County, Mississippi, attended Millsaps College immediately prior to World War I, after receiving early training in the public schools of Harrison County. Following the war, Mr. Colmer, having read law and passed the Mississippi Bar, was elected county attorney of Jackson County and later District Attorney of the Second Judicial District.

Mr. Colmer was elected to the United States Congress in 1933 and to the chairmanship of the House Rules Committee soon thereafter.

Mr. Colmer is the ranking member of the National Forest Reservation Commission and of other important commissions. During World War II he served as chairman of the Post-War Economic Policy and Planning Committee. At the conclusion of the war, he headed a subcommittee which spent six months in foreign countries studying political and economic conditions resulting from the war. His assignment included a personal interviewing of leaders of 13 different countries, among whom were Churchill and Stalin.

Mr. Colmer was the recipient of the George Washington Good Government Society Award. He is a veteran of World War I, a member of the Methodist Church, a member of the Alpha Iota Chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity, as well as of other fraternal and civic organizations.

EUGENE HENDRIX COUNTISS

Dr. Eugene Hendrix Countiss, a noted gynecologist and obstetrician of New Orleans, Louisiana, received the Bachelor of Science degree from Millsaps College and the degree of Doctor of Medicine from Tulane University. He served an internship at Charity Hospital in New Orleans and later at Bon Secours Hospital in Baltimore, Maryland, and studied gynecological pathology at Johns Hopkins University.

Dr. Countiss engaged in general practice in Baton Rouge, Louisiana, in 1935-36 and the following year became a C. Jeff Miller Fellow in Gynecology at Tulane University. From 1937 to 1946 he was an assistant and an instructor in the Tulane University Medical School. In 1937 he became associated with the Methodist Home Hospital and has served as Chief of Staff since 1941. In addition to his private practice in gynecology and obstetrics in New Orleans, he has served in the following capacities:

- Visiting Gynecologist, Chief of Obstetrics and Gynecology, and Chairman of the Committee on Education at Southern Baptist Hospital
- Visiting Gynecologist at Touro Infirmary
- Senior Visiting Surgeon in Obstetrics and Gynecology and Tulane Unit Consultant at Charity Hospital.

In 1946 he became Assistant Professor of Gynecology and Obstetrics at Tulane University and in 1949 Associate Professor. From 1958 to the present he has been Clinical Professor of Gynecology and Obstetrics at Tulane University.

Dr. Countiss has been a member of the Continental Gynecological Society since 1949; he served twice as Vice President and as President in 1963-64. In 1951 he was a member of the Founders Group of the American College of Obstetrics and Gynecology. He served as Louisiana Section Chairman from 1951 to 1956 and as Vice Chairman of District VII in 1961. He has served as Program Director and as President of the New Orleans Graduate Medical Assembly and as President and Treasurer of the New Orleans Gynecological and Obstetrical Society. In 1944 he became a Diplomate of the American Board of Obstetrics and Gynecology and in 1949 a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons.

He serves on the Official Board of the Rayne Memorial Methodist Church of New Orleans. Dr. Eugene H. Countiss has been Vice President of the Millsaps College Alumni Association. Five members of his immediate family are graduates of Millsaps College.

DAVID HERBERT DONALD

David Herbert Donald, a native of Goodman, Mississippi, was graduated with high honors in 1941 by Millsaps College. He earned the Master of Arts and the Doctor of Philosophy degrees at the University of Illinois. For the next 12 years he taught history at Columbia University. During these years Mr. Donald served as visiting professor at Amherst College and as Fulbright lecturer at the University of North Wales. For the academic year 1959-1960 he was appointed to the Vyvyan Harmsworth Chair of American History at Oxford University. Following the assignment at Oxford, he taught at Princeton. Currently he occupies the Harry C. Black Chair of American History at Johns Hopkins.

With the publication in 1948 of Lincoln's Herndon, Mr. Donald won literary attention. Other early manuscripts include A Rebel's Recollection and Lincoln Reconsidered. For his Charles Sumner and the Coming of the Civil War, 1863-1867, he was awarded a Pulitzer Prize. A more recent manuscript, The Politics of Reconstruction, resulted from a series of lectures presented at Louisiana State University. He is editor of several works, including The Documentary History of the American People.

Currently, in addition to teaching and editing, Mr. Donald is writing a second volume on Charles Sumner, for which he has been granted a Guggenheim Foundation Fellowship.

A New York Times reviewer has described Mr. Donald as one of the most perceptive, original, and literate of American historians.

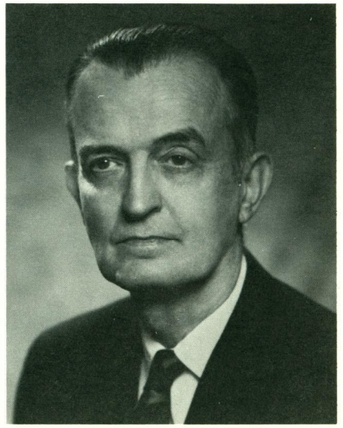
BUFORD EARL ELLINGTON

When Buford Earl Ellington was a student at Millsaps College, his ambition was to become a Methodist minister. The hard years of the depression kept him from reaching this goal, but they did not deny him a career of service to his fellow man.

Governor Ellington was first elected to public office in 1948 as delegate from Marshall County to the Tennessee General Assembly. Later he led two successful gubernatorial campaigns for Governor Frank Clement, and from 1953 to 1958 was State Commissioner of Agriculture. In 1959 Buford Ellington became the 42nd Governor of the State of Tennessee. Following his term as Governor he became resident vice-president of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad. In the early part of 1965 he was appointed Director of the Office of Emergency Planning in Washington and acted in a liaison capacity between the White House and the nation's governors. He resigned this post in 1966 to return to Tennessee to seek another term as governor. He was successful in his campaign, and in January of this year Buford Ellington again was inaugurated to this high office.

Governor Ellington has served as chairman of the Southern Governors' Conference and as a member of the executive committee of the National Governors' Conference. Other responsibilities have included the chairmanship of the Southern Regional Education Board, membership on the Board of Trustees of Peabody College, and membership

Spurgeon P. Gaskin



Rolfe L. Hunt

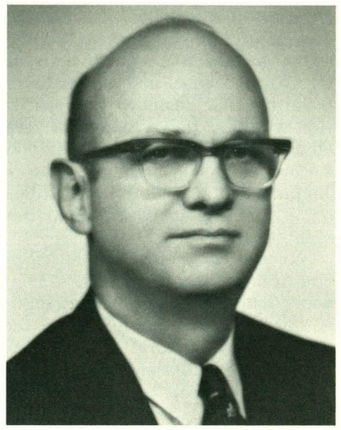
William B. Hester



Merrill O. Hines

on the Board of Directors of the Millsaps Alumni Association.

Dwight Eisenhower once said, "Politics is a profession—a serious, complicated, and, in its true sense, a noble one." In every aspect of his public life Governor Ellington has shown that he believed in and adhered to this definition of his profession. Millsaps College is indeed proud of the outstanding contributions and significant accomplishments of this illustrious alumnus.

JULIAN BECK FEIBELMAN

Julian Beck Feibelman, a native of Jackson, Mississippi, was graduated from Millsaps College in 1918, having had a tour of military duty in World War I. After a study of law at the University of Mississippi, Mr. Feibelman entered Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati, where, in 1926, he was ordained. For ten years thereafter he worked at Temple Keneseth Israel, Philadelphia, concurrently studying at the University of Pennsylvania and achieving both the Master of Arts and the Doctor of Philosophy degrees.

In 1936 Rabbi Feibelman was called to Temple Sinai in New Orleans, where he continues to serve.

Assignments of duty — religious, educational, civic, and social — to which Rabbi Feibelman has given dedicated commitment and in which he has demonstrated superior leadership are innumerable. Typical of such assignments are:

Appointment to the First World Conference on Anti-Semitism, held in 1947 in Switzerland.

Appointment as Religious Director of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, Southwest Division;

Assignment to the Mayor's Advisory Committee and to the New Orleans Crime Commission;

Membership on the Lay Board of De Paul University;

Membership on Prison Interfaith Board of Ministers for Parolees;

Leadership in the Ecumenical Movement in New Orleans;

Lecture-assignments at Tulane and Loyola.

Two honorary degrees have been conferred upon Rabbi Feibelman: that of Doctor of Laws, by Millsaps College; and that of Doctor of Divinity, by Hebrew Union College.

In his life of unselfish service to his fellowman Julian B. Feibelman has brought honor to Millsaps College.

SPURGEON PAUL GASKIN

Spurgeon Paul Gaskin, a native of Georgia, has devoted his life to the Boy Scouts of America. As a boy he was interested in Scouting and achieved Eagle Scout rank. Soon after graduating from Millsaps College, he attended the 47th National Training School for professional leaders in Scouting and then assumed his first Scouting job —that of field executive at Jackson, Mississippi. There followed other posts in Oklahoma City and in Sweetwater, Texas. In 1944 he entered the United States Navy, where he served as Lieutenant Commander.

Returning to Scouting after the war, Mr. Gaskin served as Deputy Scout Executive at Houston, Texas, and later held the same office at Raleigh, North Carolina. In 1957 he became Scout Executive of the Allegheny Council at Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Mr. Gaskin is at present Regional Scout Executive of Region Six and is responsible for the supervision of Scouting in four states and the Canal Zone. This region is composed of over 13,000 units, and Mr. Gaskin supervises the Scouting activities of over 400,000 boys. No worthier vocation exists than that of working with the youth of the nation.

WILLIAM EWING HESTER, JR.

William E. Hester, Jr., of the class of 1933, is a splendid example of the man capable of attaining outstanding success both in his vocation and in his avocation. He is a highly competent oil producer with previous experience in an official capacity in several other successful business concerns.

For four years, in this country and abroad, he served in the United States Army, in which he received the Bronze Star for meritorious service and from which he was honorably discharged with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel.

As a tennis player he has won more than 300 state, Southern, and national titles and, as a member of the Gordon Trophy Team, represented this country in international play. He was a co-founder and served as President of the River Hills Club of Jackson, which encourages and emphasizes the playing of tennis. He is past president of the Jackson Tennis Club, of the Mississippi Tennis Association, and of the Southern Lawn Tennis Association and of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

His Alma Mater is pleased to congratulate William E. Hester, Jr., for his attainment of success in business and for his service in helping to provide for fellow citizens an opportunity for meaningful and beneficial recreation.

MERRILL ODOM HINES

Merrill Odom Hines, a native of Jackson, Mississippi, was graduated from Millsaps College in 1931. Accepting a scholarship from the Edward S. Harkness Foundation (Commonwealth Fund), he attended Tulane University School of Medicine, graduating in 1936. After serving both internship and residency - in - surgery at Baroness Erlanger Hospital, Chattanooga, Dr. Hines returned to Mississippi to fulfill the Commonwealth Foundation obligation, practicing as staff surgeon at Tylertown Hospital, Tylertown, Mississippi.

In 1945 — after two years as battalion surgeon in World War II— Dr. Hines joined the staff of Ochsner Clinic. During recent years Dr. Hines has served in each of the following capacities:

President of the Staff of Ochsner Foundation Hospital,

Chairman of the Board of Management of Ochsner Clinic,

Medical Director of the Ochsner Clinic, and Trustee of the Alton Ochsner Medical Foundation.

He is currently Professor of Clinical Surgery at Tulane University School of Medicine.

In addition to affiliations with surgical societies — parish, regional, state, and national — Dr. Hines is, of course, active in similar organizations concerned with his specialty, having served as President of the American Proctologic Society.

Among the innumerable assignments assumed by Dr. Hines there are:

Diplomate of American Board of Colon and Rectal Surgery,

Member of Ten-man American Board of Colon and Rectal Surgery,

Fellow of American College of Surgeons,

Chairman (1963) of Section on Proctology in American Medical Association,

Member of the Editorial Board of the Journal of Diseases of the Colon and Rectum.

Typical of civic responsibilities assumed by Dr. Hines is his membership on the Board of Directors of Boy Scouts of America (New Orleans Unit).

Millsaps College salutes Merrill Odom Hines, one of the nation's distinguished physicians.

ROLFE LANIER HUNT

Rolfe Lanier Hunt, Class of 1924, has won renown throughout the country in the educational and journalistic professions. He earned the Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy degrees at the George Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville, Tennessee, and was awarded the honorary Doctorate of Humane Letters by Sioux Empire College in Hawarden, Iowa. For many years he served as administrator or teacher in the public schools of Mississippi and in the graduate schools of education at American University and at New York University. His contributions to the fields of education and religion have been many and varied: he is a past chief of the Editorial Section of the United States Office of Education at Washington, a past staff specialist on public schools with the National Council of Churches, past president of the Educational Press Association of America, an editor of church school lesson materials of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, a consultant on editorial planning in American and Canadian Workshops, and a co-editor with Catholic and Jewish colleagues of a Bible Reader to be used by interfaith groups and in the public schools.

A member of many learned societies, Rolfe Lanier Hunt has recently published articles in the Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, School and Society, The Nation's Schools,

The International Journal of Religious Education, Religious Education, Colliers Encyclopedia, and Looking Toward High School.

In 1967 Rolfe Lanier Hunt became the editor of The International Journal of Religious Education, official publication of the National Council of Churches' division of Christian Education. A monthly magazine, this journal is the major international publication for Protestant religious educators.

In the field of educational and religious journalism Rolfe Lanier Hunt has continued to excel in the use of those talents which his Alma Mater confidently believes she helped to develop.

MICHAEL CARTER HUNTLEY

Michael Carter Huntley, class of 1920, for more than forty years has been connected with the field of education in the capacity of student, teacher and dean. He studied at Emory University, where he received the Master of Arts degree, and did further study at Johns Hopkins University. He was awarded the Doctor of Laws degree by Millsaps College in 1939 and the Doctor of Letters degree by the University of Miami in 1942. He taught at the former Millsaps Academy and at Birmingham Southern University. He is a former Dean of Administration of the University of Alabama and is now Dean of Faculties at Auburn University.

Dr. Huntley has been an influential figure in the affairs of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, in which he held positions of leadership for nineteen years. His efforts for strengthening school programs to meet standards for accreditation have been untiring. For ten years, in carrying out the duties involved in this work, Dean Huntley visited more than one hundred colleges each year within the eleven-state region affected by the Association. Following his suggestion and example, other accrediting agencies in other regions have adopted a program of self study and periodic visitation of schools. Since 1962 he has been Chairman of the Committee on Admission to Membership for Senior Colleges. He served in Europe with the Field Artillery during World War I.

He has been a distinguished and effective leader in educational affairs and is eminently worthy of recognition for his ability and value.

SAMUEL JONES

Samuel Jones, Assistant Conductor of the Rochester Philharmonic Orchestra, graduated from Millsaps College Summa Cum Laude and received the Founders Medal for the highest scholastic average in the graduating class of 1957. His M.A. and Ph.D. Degrees are from the Eastman School of Music, where his doctoral thesis was his own Symphony No. 1. His rise in the professional music world has been impressive. In 1960 he was appointed director of instrumental music at Alma College, Alma, Michigan, where he organized and conducted the Alma Symphony. In 1962 he was named conductor and music director of the Saginaw, Michigan, Symphony Orchestra; and three years later Samuel Jones was selected from a field of more than 90 applicants for his present post in Rochester, New York.

Mr. Jones has been guest conductor with several major symphony orchestras, among them the Pittsburgh Symphony and the New York Philharmonic. He has also been honored by receiving three distinguished commissions for original compositions: The American Symphony Orchestra League's commission to compose "Festival Fanfare"; The Saginaw (Michigan) Symphony Women's Committee's commission to write "Overture for a City"; The Utica (New York) Symphony commission to compose "Chaconne and Burlesque." Other original compositions include "Elegy for John Fitzgerald Kennedy, 1917-63," two piano sonatas, and various other chamber, choral, and orchestral works.

In his two seasons in Rochester, Samuel Jones has conducted the Rochester Philharmonic in more than 100 performances. George Kimball, music critic for the Rochester Times-Union, had this to say in a recent concert review: "When young men such as Radu Luper (1966 International Van Cliburn Competition Winner) and Samuel Jones can guide a concert into the ways of excellence as they did last night with the Rochester Philharmonic, the future of music looks bright indeed."

Gwin J. Kolb

Heber A. Ladner

GWIN JACKSON KOLB

Gwin Jackson Kolb, having spent his childhood in Durant, Mississippi, came to Millsaps in the late thirties, where, in 1941, he was graduated with high honors. It was at the University of Chicago that Mr. Kolb earned both the Master of Arts and the Doctor of Philosophy degrees. Since 1949 he has been a member of the faculty of the University of Chicago, now serving as chairman of the combined English departments — undergraduate and graduate. Mr. Kolb has also been a visiting professor at Northwestern University and at Stanford.

An authority on 18th century English literature, particularly the work of Samuel Johnson, Mr. Kolb is the co-author of a manuscript entitled Dr. Johnson's Dictionary and the editor of a recent edition of Johnson's Rasselas. He has contributed scores of articles and reviews to scholarly journals and has collaborated in the editing of two volumes of a bibliography of English literature.

Gladys Jones Maw

Within recent years Mr. Kolb has received the Llewellyn John and Harriet Ann Quantrell award for excellence in undergraduate teaching, a Guggenheim Fellowship, and a grant from the American Council of Learned Societies for study at Yale.

Millsaps honors a truly outstanding academician today in presenting this citation to Gwin Jackson Kolb.

HEBER AUSTIN LADNER

Heber Ladner is one of the most eminent of Millsaps alumni. He has given honored service as Secretary of State of Mississippi since 1948, after equally productive tenures as Representative from Pearl River County, Secretary of the State Budget Commission, and Clerk of the House of Representatives. As Secretary of State Mr. Ladner contributes to numerous boards and commissions. He has served as President of the National Association of Secretaries of State. More surprisingly, in view of such heavy political responsibilities, Mr. Ladner has volunteered a civic responsibility, serving on boards of directors and advisory committees of worthwhile causes. His loyalty to his Alma Mater is attested to by his past service as president of the Millsaps Athletic Boosters Club and of the Millsaps Alumni Association. In turn, his Alma Mater takes pride in recognizing Heber Ladner as an exemplar of its pursuit of excellence—as a man who has illustrated the deservedly honorable connotations of the profession "politician."

GLADYS JONES MAW

Gladys Jones Maw, class of 1929, has spent most of her adult life as a missionary in the Congo. After earning her Master of Arts degree at Columbia University and teaching in private and public schools for six years, she married Joe Henry Maw of South Carolina, a missionary builder in the Central Congo. With him, in this appointment of the Methodist Church, she worked for thirty-one years with patience and sympathy among the natives. Her assignments included those of teacher, director, supervisor, and consultant in day schools, boarding schools, adult education projects, and the Woman's Society of Christian Service. Making use of dirt roads, forest trails, and stick buildings constantly falling apart, she was busy at all specified and unspecified times as well as during most vacation periods. At the same time she and her husband made a home for their two young children. According to Mrs. Maw, their life for thirty-one years was never dull but was full of excitement, challenge, and satisfaction. By her unselfish service to those in need Gladys Maw's life has been a manifestation of that spirit which her Alma Mater wishes to inspire in all her sons and daughters.

THOMAS HECTOR NAYLOR, JR.

Thomas Hector Naylor, Jr., has been active in school work in Mississippi all his adult life and has rendered valuable service for more than thirty-five years. A native of Lauderdale, Mississippi, he received his Bachelor of Science degree from Millsaps College and his Master's degree from the University of Mississippi.

After tenures as a teacher and coach at Gulf Coast Military Academy and at Central High School in Jackson, he was elected Hinds County Superintendent of Education in 1935 and was re-elected to this office in 1939 and in 1943 without opposition. He was secretary to the Board of Trustees of Hinds County Junior College for eleven years.

In 1947 Mr. Naylor joined the staff of the Mississippi State Department of Education as Assistant Director of the Division of School Building and Transportation and a few months later became Director of the Division. He served in this position until January, 1957. During this time he promoted a program of improved school transportation in Mississippi and directed a survey of school building facilities in the state which greatly influenced the reorganization program enacted by the Legislature in 1953. He served as consultant to the Educational Finance Commission from its inception in 1953 until 1957, when he became Executive Secretary of the Commission. For the past ten years he has directed the school reorganization and school construction programs and the expenditure of more than $300 million.

Mr. Naylor is listed in Who's Who in American Education. He is an active member of the American Association of School Administrators. He has served as President of the Interstate School Building Service and of the Southeastern States School Transportation Officials. For several years he served on the Executive Committee of the National Council on Schoolhouse Construction.

Mr. Naylor served on committees that brought about the merger of Theta Kappa Nu and Lambda Chi Alpha fraternities. He has received the Distinguished Service Award of Lambda Chi Alpha. He has twice served as President of the Millsaps College Alumni Association.

Claude W. Passeau

R. Paul Ramsey

James W. Sells

Mr. Naylor has been a member of the Official Board of Galloway Memorial Methodist Church for more than thirty years and has held many important positions in his church.

CLAUDE WILLIAM PASSEAU

Claude William Passeau is a resident of Lucedale, Mississippi. He attended Millsaps College, where he earned four letters each in basketball, football, and baseball. After graduation he continued to distinguish himself in the field of athletics. He was for a time associated with semi-professional baseball, playing with the Philadelphia Phillies. He also played with the Chicago Cubs and then, upon retirement as a player, managed clubs in Centralia, Illinois, and in Visalia, California.

During his time as a player, Mr. Passeau pitched a one-hit game against Detroit in the World Series of 1945. He played in six All-Star games between 1938 and 1947. He was elected to the Mississippi Sports Hall of Fame in 1965.

Mr. Passeau has also enjoyed a successful career in business. He is president of the Farmers Supply Company of Lucedale, Mississippi, and is a director in the Bank of Lucedale.

Millsaps College recognizes one of baseball's truly great pitchers in honoring Claude William Passeau today.

ROBERT PAUL RAMSEY

Dr. Paul Ramsey, scholar and author in the field of Christian ethics and social theory, has been a member of the faculty of Princeton University since 1944 and for the last ten year has occupied the Harrington Spear Paine Chair of Religion. He has also been a member of the faculty of Yale University; Garrett Theological Seminary, Northwestern University; and Millsaps College.

Paul Ramsey was born in Mendenhall, Mississippi. In his youth he lived and was educated in a number of Mississippi towns. During his undergraduate days at Millsaps he was a good student and an active campus leader, excelling in debate. After receiving a B.S. degree from Millsaps in 1935, he earned his B.D. and Ph.D. degrees at the Yale University Divinity School in 1940 and 1943 respectively.

Among his publications are: Basic Christian Ethics; War and the Christian Conscience; Christian Ethics and the Sit In; Nine Modern Moralists; and Deeds and Rules in Christian Ethics. Dr. Ramsey is a member of the General Editorial Committee for the works of Jonathan Edwards, eminent 18th Century theologian. He prepared Edwards' Inquiry into Freedom of the Will for publication, and wrote a critical introduction to that work.

During 1959 - 60 he was vice-president of the American Theological Society. He was elected President of the American Society of Christian Social Ethics in the United States and Canada during 1962-63.

We honor today this eminent professor of Christian ethics.

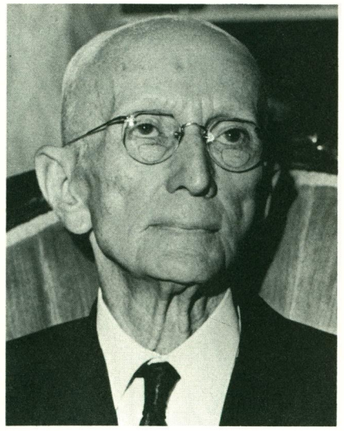
JAMES WILLIAM SELLS

James William Sells, a native of Atchison, Kansas, took his A. B. degree from Millsaps College in 1929. In 1955 he was awarded an LL.D. degree from LaGrange College and in 1964 received a D.D. degree from Emory University.

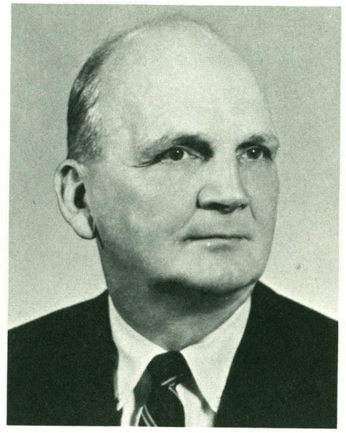
His life has been one of devotion to the Christian cause—a cause which he has served through the Methodist Church. For a number of years he served as pastor to various Mississippi churches, including those at Pascagoula, Summit, Ocean Springs, Forest, Hattiesburg, and Crystal Springs.

In 1930 he served as Field Secretary for Whitworth-Millsaps College and also in 1930 began a two-year office as Executive Secretary of the Seashore Methodist Assembly at Biloxi. From 1945 to 1952 he served as Extension Secretary of the Southeastern Jurisdictional Council, and in 1952 moved into the position which he now holds, that of Executive Secretary of the Southeastern Jurisdictional Council.

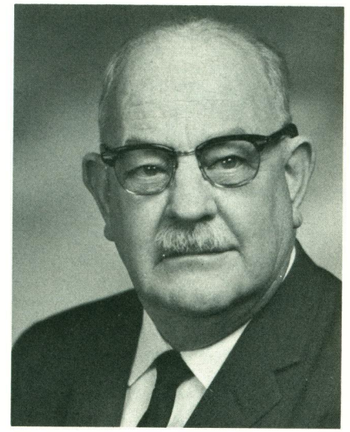
In addition to holding pastorates and executive positions, Dr. Sells has been active and influential in the areas of communication and education. He served as Director of the Joint Radio Committee; Producer of the Methodist Series, the



W. Randolph Smith



Orrin H. Swayze



Mack B. Swearingen

Protestant Hour; also as president of the Spiritual Life Publishers of Atlanta. He was on the Board of Directors of the Protestant Radio and Television Center, also located in Atlanta. At one time he served as Rural Church Editor of the Progressive Farmer Magazine, and through the years he has contributed articles and poems to religious publications. He is a member of the Board of Trustees of Paine College, Augusta, Georgia.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH SMITH

A surprising versatility with a consistently high quality of performance is a principal characteristic of Colonel William Randolph Smith. From an old-time Mississippi Methodist family, Colonel Smith attended Soule College in New Orleans, majoring in business management, and returned to Mississippi to enter the field of banking. Overcoming obstacles of health that might have halted a lesser man, Colonel Smith moved to the field of insurance (founding his own company in Jackson), to law study, and then to active service in World War I. Re-entering the field of insurance, Colonel Smith served in an executive position with The Hartford Life Insurance Company for thirty-three years before retiring to a very active and successful ownership of the Diamond S Ranch near Terry, Mississippi.

Millsaps College is proud to honor Colonel Smith with this alumni citation.

ORRIN HAYES SWAYZE

Orrin H. Swayze, class of 1927, has had a long and distinguished career as a banker and as a civic leader. Associated with the Mississippi Bankers Association since 1927, he was assistant vice-president and vice-president of the former Capital National Bank and vice - president, senior vice - president, executive vice-president, and director of the First National Bank.

In 1940 he directed the War Bond Campaign in Mississippi and then served for three and a half years in the United States Navy, from which he was discharged with the rank of Lieutenant Commander. He was national president of the organization now known as the Bank Public Relations and Marketing Association. He helped organize the School of Banking of the South at Louisiana State University and for several years was a lecturer at the Central State School of Banking in Wisconsin. Having retired from active banking duty in 1966, he continues to be a Board member and to serve on committees of the American Bankers Association.

As a leader in civic affairs he has been a director of the Jackson Symphony; director and chairman of the "Legislative Action Committee" of the Mississippi Economic Council; director and treasurer and often a committee member of the local Chamber of Commerce. He is a member of the Board of Trustees of the Mississippi Foundation for Independent Colleges; President of Pearl River Valley Development District; member of the membership committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce. He is a Deacon and Sunday School teacher in the Presbyterian Church. He is listed in Who's Who in America and in Who's Who in Banking.

Orrin Swayze's activities as banker and civic leader have been useful, constructive, and beneficial and merit recognition by his Alma Mater.

MACK BUCKLEY SWEARINGEN

Mack Buckley Swearingen is the son of the late Professor George C. Swearingen, the first teacher of Latin and Greek at Millsaps. Mr. Swearingen graduated from Millsaps College in 1922. For three years he studied at Oxford, England, as a Rhodes Scholar. Later he earned both the Master of Arts and the Doctor of Philosophy degrees from the University of Chicago.

Mr. Swearingen has taught in regular sessions at Millsaps College, Emory University, Marshall College, and the University of Ankara in Turkey, Tulane University, the Georgia State College for Women, and Elmira College; his summer teaching includes the University of Texas, Duke University, Cornell University, and the University of Vermont. Currently he is teaching at Lake Erie College in Ohio.

During the time that he was in Turkey, Mr. Swearingen worked under the auspices of a Rockefeller Foundation grant.

While at Elmira College, he was selected for special distinction for excellence in teaching. As Founder's Day speaker at Millsaps in 1965, he won unanimous acclamation from students and faculty.

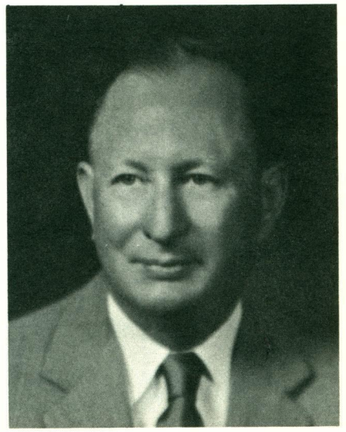
He is the author of several publications, notably, The Early Life of George Poindexter, articles on Turkey, reviews, course materials, and lectures.

LEON LUM WHEELESS

A career of public service was the one chosen by Leon Lum Wheeless when he graduated from Millsaps College in the class of 1929. This career began with his election to membership in the Mississippi House of Representatives in 1932, the same year that he received his law degree from the University of Mississippi. It continued when Mr. Wheeless became the Chairman and Executive Director of the Mississippi Unemployment Compensation Commission in 1936 and later when he assumed the Regional Directorship of the United States Railroad Retirement Board in Atlanta, Georgia. Moving on to the national scene, at the beginning of World War II Leon Wheeless was appointed to a critical post in our national defense effort, that of Deputy Director of Personnel, War Production Board, Washington, D. C. He remained with the War Production Board throughout the war, and in 1947 accepted the position of Director of Personnel in the Office of the Secretary of Defense. Mr. Wheeless was one of the first five civilian employees hired by Secretary Forrestal in this newly created department.

In 1948 Leon Wheeless was named to the significant office he was to hold for the next 18 years, that of Director of Civilian Personnel Policy in the Defense Department. In recognition of his excellent work in this position he was given the National Civil Service League Career Service Award; and, upon his retirement in 1966, Mr. Wheeless was granted the Department of Defense Distinguished Civilian Service Award. At this time he also received the unusual honor of an insertion of commendation in the Congressional Record, October 3, 1966, delivered by Representative David N. Henderson of North Carolina. Certainly these several tributes reflect the most sincere admiration and respect for Leon L. Wheeless, a man who has served his state and nation in a distinguished manner.

Leon L. Wheeless



Dan M. White

DAN McKINNON WHITE

Dan McKinnon White entered Millsaps as a freshman in September, 1913, and received both his Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Laws degrees from the College in 1917. Always an excellent student, his scholastic average was so impressive that he was awarded the Tribbett Scholarship for his junior and senior years. He showed interest in many varied phases of college life, and in his senior year Dan White had the distinction of being editor not only of the Purple and White but also of the Bobashela.

Soon after his graduation Mr. White entered the military service and served as an Army officer in our Expeditionary Forces in Europe in World War I. With the end of the war he returned to the South and began a life that has been devoted to business, civic, and cultural activities. Mr. White has been instrumental in the establishment and operation of more than 100 financial institutions throughout the South and West, Mexico, and Puerto Rico. Some of these are The Andrew Jackson Life Insurance Company, Andrew Jackson Casualty Insurance Company, and Guardian Trust Company, all of Jackson; Industrial Finance and Thrift Corporation, Bank of New Orleans, Stonewall Jackson Life Insurance Company, and Life Insurance Company of the South, all of New Orleans.

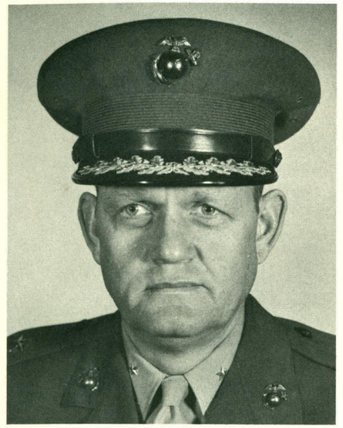
In 1962 Mr. White formed the Dan White Family Foundation. This foundation in turn established the Dan M. White Chair of Economics at Millsaps, which was the first chair of instruction created by an alumnus of the College. The Foundation has supported this Chair of Economics, along with many donations to other educational institutions.

Mr. White has been an outstanding success in the business world. It is indicative of his generous character that he has given so significantly of himself and of his means toward the encouragement and elevation of educational standards.

LOUIS HUGH WILSON, JR.

Brigadier-General Louis H. Wilson, Jr., USMC, a holder of the nation's highest honor for heroism in combat, was promoted to his current rank on December 19, 1966, and given the assignment of Legislative Assistant to the Commandant of the Marine Corps in Washington, D. C.

The Congressional Medal of Honor was awarded him for his action against enemy forces on Guam during World War II while attached to the Third Marine Division. As Commanding Officer, he led his infantry company to the capture of its objective despite overwhelming disadvantages. Although he suffered multiple wounds in battle, he pressed on to a victory that was decisive in accomplishing the mission of his regiment.



Louis H. Wilson, Jr.

Louis Wilson was born in Brandon, Mississippi. He received his elementary and secondary education in Brandon and continued his academic training at Millsaps College, receiving a Bachelor of Arts degree in 1941.

That same year he enlisted in the Marine Corps. After a period of training he went overseas, serving at Guadalcanal; Efate, New Hebrides; Bougainville, Solomon Islands; again at Guadalcanal; and then Guam.

At the conclusion of World War II, General Wilson continued his distinguished Marine Corps service in Washington; Pearl Harbor; New York; Quantico, Virginia; and in Korea. He has been in Vietnam, and for this service he received from the Republic of Vietnam the Cross of Gallantry with a gold star. His other decorations include two Purple Heart Medals, the Presidential Unit Citation, American Defense Service Medal, American Campaign Medal, the Asiatic - Pacific Campaign Medal with three bronze stars, the World War II Victory Medal, National Defense Service Medal with one bronze star and the Vietnam Service Medal.

Millsaps College pays honor to this man who has served his country well in war and in peace.

Eudora Welty is congratulated by President Benjamin B. Graves after receiving her citation. Miss Welty has served as Writer-in-Residence at Millsaps. — Photo by Charles Gerald.

EUDORA WELTY

Eudora Welty, a native of Jackson, Mississippi, is admired and respected throughout the world for her short stories and novels. To the many who have read them, her works have brought great pleasure and an insight, both fresh and deep, into human nature. Among these works are A Curtain of Green, The Robber Bridegroom, The Wide Net, The Golden Apples, The Ponder Heart, and The Bride of Innisfallen.

Evidence of her stature as a writer is at least partly revealed by the numerous honors and awards she has received: A Guggenheim Fellowship, a grant from the American Academy of Arts and Letters, the Lucy Donnelly Fellowship Award from Bryn Mawr, the Ingram Memorial Foundation Award, the Gold Medal for Fiction from the American Academy of Arts and Letters, the M. Carey Thomas Award from Bryn Mawr, recently one of the first Hollins Medals from Hollins College, and the William Dean Howells Medal.

Miss Welty has been generous with her time. She has lectured at many colleges and universities, has served as delegate to the Conference on American Studies at Cambridge University, England, and also as Honorary Consultant to the Library of Congress. She was a William Alan Neilson Professor at Smith College and in 1965-66 was Writer - in - Residence at Millsaps College.

Eudora Welty's contribution to American letters has been a truly significant one, but there is another contribution she has made that is also significant — the gift of her friendship. Writers, college students, teachers, neighbors—people everywhere—have responded to her warmth and to her humanity.

MILLSAPS COLLEGE
SUMMER SESSION 1967

FIRST TERM	JUNE 10 - JULY 15
SECOND TERM	JULY 17 - AUGUST 19

GENERAL INFORMATION

The summer program is designed to serve the following:

1. Graduates of accredited high schools who will enter the freshman class at Millsaps or at other institutions;
2. College undergraduates who are meeting requirements for a degree at Millsaps College;
3. Visiting undergraduates who desire to take courses for transfer to other institutions;
4. Teachers who need courses for certification requirements;
5. Persons who desire study in particular areas.

REGISTRATION

Application blanks may be obtained by writing to Director of Summer Session, Millsaps College, Jackson, Mississippi, 39210. Pre-registration is advisable.

High school graduates attending for the first time must supply a complete transcript.

College students entering Millsaps for the summer terms only must provide a statement of eligibility from the dean or registrar of the last school attended.

To transfer credit earned during the summer terms, a written request must be filed with the registrar of Millsaps College.

SCHEDULE CHANGES

All courses listed will be offered, but the College reserves the right to withdraw a course if there is insufficient registration (fewer than five) or to change instructors if necessary.

HOUSING REGULATIONS

Adequate college housing is available for both men and women. All out-of-town students must live on campus unless they have written permission from the Office of Student Personnel to live off campus. No first-semester freshmen are permitted to live in fraternity houses. Dormitories are air-conditioned.

MAXIMUM LOAD

The maximum load a student may take is seven semester hours in one term, fourteen semester hours in two terms.

ATTENDANCE

Students are expected to be present for each class session. Instructors may exclude students from a class and withhold credit if unexcused absences in that class exceed three.

MILLSAPS COLLEGE

PROFILE

Founded in 1890 as an institution of the Methodist Church, Millsaps College was named for its chief benefactor, Major R. W. Millsaps. It is a liberal arts institution offering the degrees of Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Music, and Bachelor of Science in twenty different areas of specialization. It is fully accredited by all appropriate standardizing and accrediting agencies, both regional and national.

LOCATION

Millsaps is located in the state capital, a city of 160,000. Jackson offers advantages in terms of cultural, educational, religious, and recreational experiences. The Capitol is a laboratory for students of political science and government. The University of Mississippi Medical Center is within sight of the Millsaps campus. Jackson's metropolitan population provides a good source of research for psychological and social projects.

FACILITIES

Situated near the center of Jackson's educational population, the campus covers 100 acres on one of the highest points in the city. Its facilities include a 25-acre golf course; Murrah Hall, the administration building; Sullivan - Harrell Science Hall, recently renovated; the Christian Center building, with auditorium and classrooms; A. Boyd Campbell Student Center, including cafeteria, grill, and post office-bookstore; Millsaps-Wilson Library; the Music Hall; Buie Memorial Gymnasium; James Observatory; residences for men and dormitories for women. A modern electronic language laboratory with 60 positions facilitates learning of foreign languages. All buildings used during the summer session are air-conditioned. Plans for the near future call for the erection of an academic complex housing a fine arts center, a lecture center, and a library addition.

THE REGULAR SESSION

Students interested in attending the regular session should contact the Director of Admissions, Millsaps College, Jackson, Mississippi, 39210. The fall term will open September 12.

HIGH SCHOOL DAY

Saturday, November 18

Millsaps College / A Methodist-Related Liberal Arts College / Jackson, Miss.

It's a big step, deciding where you'll spend four of the most important years of your life. The college you go to, whether you think so now or while you're there, will have a major influence on your attitudes, on what you consider important in life, on how you look at things, on your cultural and aesthetic appreciation, on the value you place on the worth of humanity. In other words, your college helps to shape you. You can be helped toward your goals at almost any college, but there's an intangible something about each which imparts itself into your personality.

So consider your choice carefully. We know Millsaps is not for everybody. But we also know that we can and do mean a great deal to a large number of students. That's why we invite you to visit our campus, look us over, talk to our teachers and students, consider our philosophy and goals, survey our facilities. Your visit should help you make up your mind, one way or another.
